BEAUTY PLAN FOR SUNNY MORNINGS

Keeping the Complexion Fresh And Cool

A SIMPLE MAKE-UP

Whether you decide to be dairy-maid or woman of the world, your complexion must look as fresh and cool as the fabric you are wearing.

With a plain morning frock, the simpler you keep your make-up the better. Here is a beauty plan for you for that sunny morning when you step into your fresh new print.

Cleanse the face and neck with a cleansing cream of light texture. Whip it on the skin and off again. Rinse in cold water with a dash of lavender water or eau de Cologne added, then splash the face vigorously until it glows. If your skin is dryish, rub in a little emollient after washing. Let the emollient dry on, then powder the face and neck quite thickly.

Now for rouge. Only the lightest touch is necessary, taking care to follow faithfully your own natural colouring. Lipstick, of course, in a clear red, or as near nature's own hue as possible. Another dust of powder, and when the lashes and brows have been groomed, the simple make-up for wearing with your print frock is complete.

CHIFFON NOT ONLY CONFINED TO YOUTH

Any Girl May Look Graceful And Dignified

Do not imagine if you are no longer young that you cannot wear chiffon. A blue patterned chiffon frock or a velvet one, plain and stately, would make any girl look graceful and dignified.

VARIOUS STYLES IN MILLINERY Backless Vogue The Latest

Hats in felt with crowns of broderie anglaise or tulle represent some of the latest and most interesting styles of millinery. A sensational Breton sailor shape in navy felt with two blue ostrich plumes has a crown of palest pink broderie anglaise. Newest of all is the backless hat, in reality half a hat, in felt or straw, and at the back a band of felt or ribbon, filled with masses of tiny glycerined wings of all colours, or close clusters of floral petals. Magenta, a crude green-yellow, currants and daisies made in cotton wool and silk are all there. Some of these backless hats resemble a jockey cap held by a strap.

BEAUTY TECHNIQUE

HAIR DRESSING TO BE SIMPLIFIED

HEAVY CREAM NOT NECESSARY IN SUMMER

New beauty habits will do something besides just altering the appearance. They will quicken the mind, freshen the outlook and uplift the spirit—just as new summer covers and dresses do. Old habits, even good ones, need stirring up once in a while. Ruts in the mind are so apt to lead to ruts in the face.

A willingness to experiment is the very foundation of youth. Fresh ideas bubbling around in the mind animate the face just the way good circulation brings up colour in the skin. And when October comes it will be so pleasant to get out the box and rediscovers the hidden preparations. Bath essence and perfume will seem as exciting again as the first day they were purchased.

Lightness And Delicacy As to these new things here are the general rules: Creams may be lighter in texture, perfumes more delicate, powders warmer in tone; rouges and lipsticks should contain more yellow, nail polishes may be darker. Hair dressing should be simplified.

The "why's" back of this are quite simple. Skin is less likely to be dry in warm weather. The reasons are: More fresh air and exercise, less cold wind, no artificial heat, a better balanced diet. Therefore, most skins do not require the kindly encouragement of an unusually heavy cream. On early summer mornings and late summer evenings, do the patting and tapping and smoothing with a cream that suits the season.

Perfumes As to fragrance—we are increasingly conscious of odours as the temperature mounts. Be kind to those around you, as well as yourself, and choose light refreshing perfumes that bring a delicious sense of coolness with them. Lavender, lilac, violet, and the dozen and one blended odours that are like gardens in the early morning, come into the bath, too, pine and verbena and other light, tangy essences do something for the spirit as well as the warm weary flesh. For the woman who isn't accustomed to use a body lotion after your bath, summer is the time to start trying it. Pat the lotion on gently while the skin is still a trifle damp. It has a cool and lovely feeling.

Considered Rude!

In a letter to a school teacher many years ago a mother wrote, "Please do not teach our Mary Anne any more about her body or its inside, she does not want to know about that, and besides it is rude."

Such foolish prejudices have fortunately been overcome with the passing of time, and a knowledge of the workings of the body has opened the door to better health. The day is past when one faced the dangers of neglected constipation rather than acknowledge the trouble. Progress too has discovered a laxative far superior to old-fashioned remedies which caused gripping pains and violent action harmful to the organs. This laxative is Pinkettes. These tiny pills assist nature in a normal way to maintain daily regularity. They aid the liver, banish biliousness, sick-headaches, coated tongue, foul breath, and quickly relieve piles; are obtainable at all chemists.

PATTERNED FABRICS

Colour Effects Inspired From The Garden

Crepe de Chine and silk chiffons printed in orchid colourings and designs would be interesting and artistic. Sprays of the smaller type of the flower would lend themselves to new designs. What could be more lovely than a dress of chiffon displaying the graceful apricot Dendrobium Thwaites, with its markings of golden brown, rich as velvet? Some of the quaintly mottled petals of other types would be charming and youthful-looking in any flowing-silk material. On a background of pure satin splendid effects should be possible. The Black Prince, for instance, is an outstanding species.

YESTERDAY'S SOLUTION

its lip strongly marked with deep crimson. Experts in colour who occupy important place in the fashion world nowadays and designers of fabrics might be inspired to look for ideas from the orchid family. Even the inclusion of some of the dulled and strangely bearded flowers would be interesting.

Manchukuo's budget for the next fiscal year, which will extend only from July next, till December 31, was set recently at Y1,033,998,700. The budget for the full 1934-35 year amounted to Y1,188,725,700.
Of the appropriations for the six-month period, the most important are the "promotion of national welfare," which includes road construction, with Y5,970,000, and the construction of famine relief granaries, for which Y3,000,000 is allotted.
Military Needs
Appropriations for military needs, include those for national defence and peace preservation with Y1,810,000; bandit suppression, Y1,300,000; construction of river gun-boats, Y1,130,000; "border defence," Y1,000,000; and reorganisation of the border patrol forces, Y550,000.
Sums totalling Y5,220,800 are appropriated for the reform of the legal system, in preparation for the abolition of extrajurisdictionality. Included in this total are Y1,500,000 for the improvement of the police organisation; Y760,000, for the reform of various administrative organs; and Y2,600,000 for the construction of various new Government buildings.

DIOCESAN GIRLS' SCHOOL
Annual Prizegiving
LADY SOUTHERN TRIBUTES HEADMISTRESS
The annual prizegiving of the Diocesan Girls' School occurred yesterday, when Miss Sawyer, the Headmistress, read the yearly report setting forth, amongst other matters, her views on discipline and a different standard of allocating prizes.
The prizes were distributed by Lady Southern, wife of H.E. the Officer Administering the Government, who was supported on the dais by the Rt. Rev. Bishop, R. Hall, chairman of the School, Mr. G. R. Sayer, Director of Education and Mrs. Sayer, Professor M. H. Boffey, the Rev. J. R. Higgs, the Rev. C. B. R. Sargent, Mrs. J. Owen Hughes, Mrs. J. T. Smalley, Mrs. Faid and Captain Cragg, Aide de Camp to Lady Southern.
Lady Southern spoke in eulogy of the work done by Miss Sawyer and also tributed Miss Armstrong and Miss Leung for their work in connection with the Guides movement amongst the pupils. Mr. G. R. Sayer, Director of Education, also contributed a witty speech.
ADAMSON DESIRES SILENCE

BRIDGE NOTES
FORCING AN ENTRY
By Ely Culbertson
The old Whist rule of "second hand low" should be broken for any one of a number of reasons. It may be that it is most essential to cover an honour to promote a trick in partner's hand; it may be vital that you should go up with a high card to protect one of your partner's entries; or maybe you should jump up merely because you wish to cash a setting trick.
Still another reason for the seemingly unnecessary play of a high card by the second hand is to prevent the declarer from shutting him out and ducking the trick into the non-dangerous hand. On the hand below West defeated a three-no-trump contract by brilliantly putting up a doubly guarded Jack. This ply completely threw the declarer's plans out of gear.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 D Pass 1 S Pass
2 NT Pass 3 S Pass
3 NT Pass Pass Pass
The above bidding was rather normal and the final contract a natural one.
West opened his fourth best heart and East's Queen held the first trick. South, of course, realised that to fulfil his contract he had to set up some spade tricks, first giving up one trick in that suit. He decided to hold off two rounds of hearts and thus attempt to prevent East and West, after getting in, from running too many heart tricks. East continued the suit and South again stayed off, but won the third round.
South's only hope now was that the spade suit was divided 3-3 and that he could shut the West hand out. He accordingly led a low spade from his hand, intending if West played low to play low from dummy.
The West player was not asleep, however. He knew from the bidding that South probably held only two small spades, as after North had rebid the suit South, with three cards in it, would probably have raised to four rather than bid three no-trump.
In addition, if South did hold three spades, West knew his cause would be lost, as the spade lead would almost surely be ducked into the East hand and now, even though the declarer won only four spade tricks instead of five, the contract would be fulfilled as West could not get in. Consequently West jumped up with his spade Jack to prevent the declarer from ducking the first round of the suit to East.
This play rendered South helpless. He could not afford to let West's Jack hold the trick as the latter would now run the setting heart tricks. On the other hand, South could not win the first spade and then duck the second spade into the East hand, as he would now have no means of re-entering dummy.
Actually, South in desperation played for his only chance. He topped the spade Jack with the King in dummy, returned to his own hand and then took the finesse, hoping that West had originally held both honours. The finesse, of course, lost to East's Queen and South did not even make both of his high spades. As a result, his contract was eventually defeated three tricks.
Had West complacently played a low spade on South's lead of that suit, the contract would have been fulfilled as South would then have been able to win four spade tricks and five other tricks in Aces and Kings.

"This was a very determined effort on the part of the dead man to take his life," said Mr. F. W. Bestley, the Southend Deputy Coroner, at the inquest on Thomas Leslie Shugar, aged 36, a tram conductor, of Westbourne Grove, Westcliff.
Shugar cut his throat, took spirits of salts, and was then found dead in a gas-filled room. A verdict of "Suicide while of Unsound Mind" was returned.

RECREIO'S VISIT TO KOWLOON B.G.C. MAY PROVE DISASTROUS

OMAR WELL BEATEN BY J. V. RAMSEY BIG SURPRISE IN OPEN SINGLES

GLORIOUS OPPORTUNITY LOST ON 21ST HEAD

(By "Skip")

A major sensation was caused in the Third Round of the Colony Lawn Bowls Singles Championship yesterday when U. M. Omar, the champion in 1923 and 1931, runner-up on another occasion, and one of the favourites for the title this year, was defeated by 24 shots to 20 on the Recreio green by the Kowloon Dock player, J. V. Ramsey.

The match, which went to 26 heads, was one of the finest seen this year, being a ding-dong struggle throughout, with Omar fighting back magnificently. Omar was not seen at his best and was only playing comparatively well, but Ramsey shone. He played very cautiously and with intelligent foresight, and seldom—if ever—wasted a bowl. His opponent also played a careful game, but Ramsey's accuracy and consistency sometimes had him nonplussed.

A remarkable feature of the game was that both bowlers lost most of their points when playing the heads they themselves favoured. Ramsey invariably made it a short head when he had the jack, while Omar preferred the full-length head. Little fault could be found with the green—indeed, it is perhaps the finest in the Colony at present.

Out-Generalised in Drawing

Ramsey had his adversary completely out-generalised in drawing and time without number had his first woods well up to the jack. When it came to a drive, however, Omar had the better of the exchanges.

Ramsey opened splendidly with a "four" and this in itself seemed to set Omar back a little for the rest of the match.

FOURTH ROUND OF RINKS CONTEST

Dates Arranged

A. M. Holland's rink (P. T. Farrell, R. Duncan and J. C. Brown), who have been drawn against a rink of club-mates in the Colony Rinks Championship, will play off their tie against J. L. Tetley, W. E. Hale, D. W. Watson and M. J. Henderson (skip) of the Recreio green on Tuesday.

The two following rinks games will be played off on Sunday, July 21.

A. A. Razack, M. A. R. Souza, R. S. Gomes and D. R. R. Gomes (skip) v. J. L. Silva, L. J. Xavier, H. Alves and F. V. Ribeiro (skip) (Taikoo green).

J. Cavanagh, R. W. Bradbury, H. Beer and U. M. Omar (skip) v. J. E. Noronha, F. X. Silva, C. E. Margate and C. C. Silva (skip) (Bowling Green).

BRADBURY AS NEW SINGLES THREAT PROMISING DISPLAY IN THIRD ROUND

ADVANTAGE OF PLAY IN CLOSE SEASON

LAST Saturday was a barren one for bowlers, the heavy rain that fell during the morning made it quite clear to all that the greens would be sodden and unplayable even if it cleared up by noon.

On Sunday, however, the weather conditions had improved so much that nearly the entire programme that had been arranged was completed, both with regard to Open and Club events.

The most interesting match of the day was undoubtedly the Open Rinks game between an Indian R. C. four composed of Dallah, Adal, Bur, and Khan, and that from the K. C. C., Hyde-Lay, E. C. Fincher, Craig and J. W. M. Brown. TAKING INTO CONSIDERATION THE HEAVY STATE OF THE GREEN, THE STANDARD OF PLAY WAS VERY HIGH AND IT THOUGHT THAT BROWN, PARTICULARLY IN THE EARLIER STAGES OF THIS CONTEST, WAS THE BEST OF THE EIGHT ON VIEW. HYDE-LAY WAS ALSO OPERATING IN A STEADY AND COMPREHENSIVE MANNER WHICH ULTIMATELY WON ITS DUE REWARD, HIS DECISION AT THE SECOND LAST HEAD WAS TYPICAL OF HIS METHODS THROUGHOUT.

At this head the score was 17-12 in the Kowloon rink's favour, but the Indians were lying 2 and a measure for three, with other possibilities about the position. Hyde-Lay was re-

Draws Announced

CLUB CHAMPION GIVEN BIG HANDICAP

The following is the draw for the H.K. Electric R.C. Lawn Bowls Championships and the Single Handicap, the first round of which is to be completed by August 17.

In connection with the handicaps it is noteworthy that the Club champion, J. K. Sloan, has to overcome a minus 5 setback if he is to win that competition.

The full draw for the Singles Championship is: W. Stoker v. A. F. Paul; A. P. T. Buck v. J. F. Barron; J. Sloan v. L. de Rome; W. E. Peers v. G. T. Padgett.

The following have received byes into the Second Round.

R. DUNCAN'S PROUD LAWN BOWLS RECORD

ONE OF ORIGINAL C.S.C.C. MEMBERS

DISTINGUISHED CAREER WITH K.B.C.

Commencing to play bowls when the Civil Service Cricket Club was opened in 1904, R. Duncan, now a regular member of the Bowling Green first team, has a record which would probably rival any other in the Colony.

He skipped successfully for the Civil Service team during his stay with that Club, besides winning several prizes, including the Victoria Cup, which became his after he had won it twice in succession. The Civil Service Club lost a valuable asset when Duncan decided to transfer his allegiance to the Kowloon B. G. C. in 1920.

Before long his undoubted ability was recognised and he was given a place in the Bowling Green team. Individually, he was also not undistinguished—he was twice winner of the Vice-President's trophy.

Last Four in Open

In the 1928 Open Championship he reached the semi-final only to be beaten by L. Clark, while the following year he reached the last eight of the same competition. He has played in the Bowling Green rink against Shanghai on several occasions, being on the winning side each time.

In the annual inter-departmental Government competition, Duncan skipped the Sanitary Department four to victory in 1927. In addition, he has been a member of the Kowloon B.G.C. committee for several years. "Skip."

CRAIGENGOWER'S BIG OPPORTUNITY

K.C.C. SUCCESS WOULD NOT SURPRISE

McHARDIE AS POLICE SKIP

(By "Skip")

IF the Craigengower "A" manage to overcome the very unfortunate K. C. C. team to-morrow, then in all probability they will find themselves League leaders, as the Bowling Green are due to meet the Recreio at Austin Road and nothing will satisfy the home team but victory.

During the course of the last few days, the possibility of the Bowling Green being able to accomplish this feat has been discussed freely and opinion voiced by some keen and experienced bowlers leans strongly to the belief that they will succeed.

Whether fortune smiles on their success can be entertained. McHardie is following his father's footsteps, being a very careful and steady bowler. He is worthy of the place allotted him, that of skip, with G. Moss as No. 3 to him. He is in a very strong position indeed, and great hopes are entertained for his rink's success.

The Civil Service side has been altered for their match against Craigengower "B", and it is to be hoped that an improvement on past results will be shown.

Police Juniors Improve

The intelligent tactics that the younger members of the Police team have disclosed in the course of their last two matches makes their chances of defeating the Indians quite good, even though the match is on the latter's green, which is considered so difficult. The introduction of Shepherd to a skip's position, has made a world of difference to the team, and now every confidence in

STOTHARD CHOOSES HIS DISTANCE

CONCENTRATING ON HALF MILE

London, June 6.
J. C. Stothard, the Cambridge runner, will attempt no more mile races, but is concentrating on the half-mile for the remainder of the season.

Which ought to please those who regard him as the most likely to retain the half-mile Olympic title, which Tom Hampson won so brilliantly for England.

Ideal Man

Stothard's sturdy build and fine turn of finishing speed equip him ideally for the 880-yards course. He is, in fact, a favourite for the event in the coming A.A.A. championships.

He has been running in miles lately to help Cambridge and Achilles in team matches.

11 for 36 v Sussex
6 for 79 v S. Africans
6 for 53 v Essex

FIRST CENTURY

As a right-handed batsman of the stubborn type and slow to medium left-arm bowler, Hopwood was featured in his second big knock of the season, his first being against Kent, when he scored 96.

Washbrook achieved the distinction of scoring a brilliant double century against Oxford University in the county's first match of the season, and followed this up by scoring 87 not out against Worcester and 92 against Gloucester.

SOUTH AFRICANS DRAW
The South Africans recorded their sixth drawn encounter when they met Norfolk in a two-day match at Norwich.

Norfolk surprisingly scored 325, a century by Edrich featuring the innings. The tourists replied with 376, K. F. Viljoen scoring his second century of the tour.

SHORT SHOTS

A GAIN another choice for the part of "Darnay" in "The Tale of Two Cities" which Ronald Colman is making at the M.G.M. studio. This time, it is not Laurence Olivier nor Brian Aherne, but Donald Woods from Warners. Brian Aherne is "going places" and deservedly so. He is to be leading man opposite Joan Crawford in "If You Love Me," which van Dyke will direct. He has also supplanted Francis Lederer as "Darnay" in "The Three Musketeers" for R.E.O. The other leading male roles will be in the hands of Paul Lukas, Osnow Stevens and Alan Hale. Two English girls will enact the roles of "Milady" and "Constance," Margot Grahame (Mrs. Francis Lederer) and Heather Angel (Mrs. Ralph Forbes).

Grace Moore's opening at Covent Garden in "La Boheme" was more than a triumph. It was a revelation. Her curtain call was so many that they were uncountable. Hundreds of people lined up the night before, mostly those who had seen her in "One Night of Love." All the critics are unanimous in stating that her golden voice is 100 per cent better

POPULAR COMEDIES AT ORIENTAL

WHEN a picture is as good as "Naughty Marietta" there is nothing to say, except that anyone who misses it misses one of the really outstanding films of the year.

"Naughty Marietta" is well-nigh perfect. The enchanting, lilting Victor Herbert music, its delightful rendering by Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy, the charming, light story of the naughty, adventurous Princess and the fine direction by "Woody" van Dyke, the whole excellently mounted and dressed by M.G.M., ensures an evening of pleasure that comes but seldom.

Nelson Eddy will win all hearts. This famous Metropolitan Opera Star, concert and radio favourite, has become the "man of the hour" in the pictures, and makes an ideal co-star for Miss MacDonald, who is singing gloriously—in fact her rendition of the "Italian Street Song" and "Sweet Mystery of Life" could not be bettered by any of the Opera stars now on the screen.

Yes, this picture has everything it takes, and a little bit more for good measure. Be wise and see it more than once, as the popular Queen's management have seen fit to revive it for two nights (Queen's).

"Let's Live To-night"

A gay bachelor (Tullio Carminati) sings a waltz ("Love Passes By") to a young girl (Lillian Harvey), whom he picked up in the Casino and took aboard his yacht. Fearing he loves her, he tells her away alone without telling her why. When he returns, the girl has agreed to marry his younger brother (Hugh Williams). Clearing the situation, to bring about the desired happy ending, takes a lot of time and some music; but with the gayest of settings, the fascinating hero of "One Night of Love," and the cloth-of-gold ingenue Lillian Harvey looking fragile and lovely, not forgetting Tala Birrell and Hugh Williams, plus gorgeous scenes in Monte Carlo gardens, this gay sophisticated comedy should please the average cinema-goer.

I am not an admirer of Colin Clive's acting, and as usual find him most melodramatic. Frank Lawton still looks far too young to play here, and Mrs. Patrick Campbell repeats her performance of "Rip Tide." The child is played by Barbara, the daughter of Reginald Denny, who is also in the cast.

The whole cast is British with the exception of Jane Wyatt, (from the New York stage), and Gilbert Emery. Splendid work is done by Lionel Atwill, Henry Stephenson, Alan Mowbray, C. Aubrey Smith and others. Be it noted Mrs. Pat's favourite maid and pet Pekinese appear for a fleeting moment.

This picture exposes in the most dramatic fashion divorce-court injustice and the strong central theme makes it interesting and worth seeing. (King's).

Pauline Lord. This name does not convey much to anyone except those who know their stage. How many years is it since this actress caused the greatest sensation ever known in theatrical history when she appeared as the heroine in "Anna Christie" in London? She had previously played the part for years—in the States, but nowhere had she a greater triumph than in London, and her first night is still recalled by those who were lucky enough to be in the audience.

Now she getting on in years, Pauline Lord is not a beauty, but she makes her film debut in "Mrs. Wiggs" in a gently haunting, admirably restrained manner, and it is to be hoped she will be seen in more pictures, for she is the type of actress who is needed.

The story of the poor but incurably optimistic mother of the large family, who eludes out a miserable existence in shantytown, is well-known and shows bravery and cheerfulness in the face of unbelievable privations and adversities.

romance. It makes an interesting, quietly pleasing picture. (Alhambra).

"Ladies Should Listen"

This is a movie cocktail sprinkled with laughs. An eavesdropping switchboard girl in a swanky apartment house in Paris, a misanthropic porter, a near-sighted heiress with a habit of stumbling over obstacles into the arms of handsome young men—and Edward Everett Horton.

Cary Grant is delightful in the role of the hero; Frances Drake is the telephone operator who makes him her responsibility and, by listening-in, protects him from the two designing women, Nydia Westman and Rosita Moreno; and the old-time movie favourite, Charles Ray, in a minor role, not forgetting the popular Mr. E. E. H. being just himself, but grand fun nevertheless. This society comedy is for adult audiences. (Alhambra).

"One More River"

The late John Galsworthy, a stickler for accuracy, disliked having his works altered for screen purposes, but the many readers of this—his last in the Forsyte family series—will notice that R. C. Sheriff has made a few alterations. Names have been altered, a restaurant scene added, and a great deal made of the election and trial episodes.

The latter is really the best part of the picture, and consists of a long detailed reproduction of the hearing of an English society divorce case done with full fidelity to fact.

Diana Wynyard (now acting in "Sweet Aloys" in London) gives one of her best screen performances as "Lady Corven," the girl who leaves her husband and on a voyage meets a young man. The story is familiar to those who will see the Universal picture, which has been well directed by James Whale.

I am not an admirer of Colin Clive's acting, and as usual find him most melodramatic. Frank Lawton still looks far too young to play here, and Mrs. Patrick Campbell repeats her performance of "Rip Tide." The child is played by Barbara, the daughter of Reginald Denny, who is also in the cast.

The whole cast is British with the exception of Jane Wyatt, (from the New York stage), and Gilbert Emery. Splendid work is done by Lionel Atwill, Henry Stephenson, Alan Mowbray, C. Aubrey Smith and others. Be it noted Mrs. Pat's favourite maid and pet Pekinese appear for a fleeting moment.

This picture exposes in the most dramatic fashion divorce-court injustice and the strong central theme makes it interesting and worth seeing. (King's).

If the "fans" are still interested in Douglas Fairbanks Senior, here is his British-made film, "The Private Life of Don Juan," with a galaxy of beautiful women to help put it across. Like the previous Korda film, the women are not asked to do much, except look lovely.

The star admits he was out of his element in this picture, and hardly suggests Don Juan with his innumerable love affairs. Fairbanks seems tired, and his voice is not suitable to the talkies. I think, personally, he should be content with all he has made from his great success in the movies, and leave the field to actors who are more to the present taste. Merle Oberon, (the little half Indian-half English girl Queenie Thompson, who used to serve in a shop in Calcutta) has made enormous strides since Korda gave her a chance, as he did Wendy Barrie in "Wedding Rehearsal".

Her small role in "The Private Life of Henry VIII," drew the attention of picture-goers, and now in Hollywood she is another of the British imported stars set to do big things. She is subtly Asiatic-looking and a decided acquisition to the screen.

Binnie Barnes and Benita Hume, both also now in Hollywood, are among those present. The picture is a slow-moving study of the great lover's declining years, beautifully produced and photographed, but disappointing because the star lets it down badly.

Among the cast you will catch glimpses of Owen Nares, Melville Cooper, Gina Malo, Joan Gardner, Diana Napier, Athene Seyler, Barry Mackay, Claud Allister, Heather Thatcher and many more. (King's).

"Below The Sea"

Here is rousing melodrama, with something exciting happening every second, and as much incident as can be crowded into a film of ordinary length.

The story is told in a competent manner, and the main sequence concerns a scientific expedition to the tropics for the purpose of collecting undersea specimens.

It is financed by a society girl who employs a deep-sea diver and the ex-captain of a German submarine. The two men hate each other, but are drawn together through their knowledge of a sunken chest of gold which they mean to retrieve from the depths of the ocean, unknown to the other members. Then there is romance when the self-willed girl chases the hard-boiled indifferent diver.

I hate disclosing any more of the plot: but the actors and Fay Wray all do grand work. Ralph Bellamy and Fredrik Vogeding (from the stage) are specially outstanding. The submarine camera work is the highlight of the film. Well worth seeing. (Queen's).

Silver Hesitations

Poor Mr. Morgenthau! The way of transgressors is hard in economics as in ethics—possibly even harder. To him it falls to find a reasonable explanation for a policy which will not admit of any explanation that has not a political tinge; and at such an inconvenient moment too, when circumstances have conspired to fix the world's attention on the American Treasury. "Every thing depends on the American Treasury" is the summary of the market position put forward in one of the most widely circulated of the Brokers' circulars; and no description would be more calculated to kill silver as a basis of currency. For whatever may happen about the proposal to work towards a "practical stabilisation" as suggested by Mr. Cordell Hull, the Secretary of State, the other day, it is quite certain that the rest of the world is not going to perpetuate a condition of dependence "on the American Treasury." There is already something like a "corner in gold" which would have killed American foreign trade but for the devaluation of the dollar by over forty per cent.; but a corner in silver on the top of it would simply lead to the abandonment of the metal standard idea altogether. Clever as the "Brain Trust" may be, there is no reason to suppose that they have engineered a "corner in brains."

Let us consider for a moment this silver buying policy from some different points of view. In an early speech the Treasurer explained that his object was to "rehabilitate silver as a basis of exchange." The silver dollar was supposed to have fallen so low that Chinese traders could no longer afford to buy American goods. The cure was to raise the international value of silver in terms of gold, on which the American dollar is based. Accordingly Mr. Morgenthau who could have purchased all the silver he wanted at quite a low price, had he bought in the ordinary way, buys silver sensationally at a fixed price of about three times its cost of production, and encourages the Senators from Nevada and other silver States to hope that we will buy up to the price at which silver tokens circulate as part of a gold-based coinage, the level of which is already inconveniently high. Let us suppose that he had succeeded in increasing the amount of goods bought by China from the United States. The merchants who sold those goods would be making a profit out of the difference in price artificially created; the rest of the American taxpayers would be paying the difference—not the Chinese purchasers.

Even so, no great damage would have been done if the tariff was providing a surplus of revenue which had to be got rid of somehow, as used to be done through the Pensions Department. But that is not the present position. The tariff still continues to kill trade more and more effectively, so that other countries have practically abandoned the attempt to climb over it, and confine their business to certain raw materials, like rubber. The profits of that trade are quite inadequate to pay interest on American loans, about a thousand million pounds' worth of which are now in default simply because of the physical impossibility of making payment. The only other source of revenue is internal taxation, which means that in the richest creditor country in the world one citizen has to support another who happens to be out of work without any of the assistance that might be gained from dealing with the citizens of the world outside. And the cost of the assistance required to escape from starvation is colossal. During the last financial year two dollars were spent for every dollar that was received. The odd dollar has been added to the debt, which a few years ago was in a fair way to be extinguished altogether. There is no prospect of the days of quick and easy repayment returning; for every country now is adapting itself to the new conditions of economic self-sufficiency.

The stage of welcoming a mild form of inflation by putting dollars into circulation for unwanted silver no longer looks so attractive, for quantities of dollars are now being put into circulation of necessity. But when the Treasury would willingly stop at the half-way house, it is accused of treachery—of having promised silver at $1.29 and leaving it at 76 cents. Some show of consistency must be made. But never was any policy so repudiated by the countries who find their trade upset by the market fluctuations of their currencies—and these are the countries that it is desirable to conciliate. The consequence is that between conflicting motives Mr. Morgenthau is driven to earn the compliment of "operating like an experienced broker" which means "buying on a falling market"—buying silver he does not want to avoid the necessity of having it offered to him at a lower rate.

Here There and Everywhere

MUSIC FROM THE AIR

Some years ago Professor Leo Theremin, a Russian, gave a demonstration of the extraction of music from an electrical box without the box being touched. The box has since been perfected and christened the theremin. It is now a recognised musical instrument, used frequently in concerts in America. It was heard in London, for the first time in its perfected state, last month.

SOFTEST PIANISSIMO

It is played by movements of the fingers and body within the magnetic field of the box. The movements are graceful and like those of a dancer. The theremin has a wide register, and it is claimed, can range from an unlimited crescendo to a pianissimo softer than that of any other instrument. It blends well with string music.

NEWEST UNIT OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE INDEPENDENCE CLAIMS SECURED TO BURMA COUNTRY'S STRONG PROTEST AGAINST EXTINCTION

(By E. W. R. Stone)

THE British Empire has a new unit. Included in the general Indian reforms which passed their third reading in the House of Commons recently are provisions which will eventually make Burma, hitherto a province of British India, a separate country.

What manner of country is this new dominion-to-be? The Englishman's knowledge of it, based mainly on a scraggy reading of Kipling, is really no knowledge. It ignores such essential factors as that Burma is sandwiched between the teeming vastnesses of China and India.

That was one cause of the Burmese demand for separation from India.

The demand was a protest against extinction—against being reduced to a mere backwater of Indian nationalism. Indian politicians, generally, do not wish to lose Burma. The Indian Congress, to whom Imperialism is supposed to be anathema, like to think of themselves as the Indian Government of the future—a Government with a little Further East empire of its own.

But Burma wants to curb Indian immigration to control her own tariff, to prevent the inroads of Indian landlordism, and to preserve Burmese Buddhism. Burma wants to become increasingly Burmese. Instead of, as she is to-day, increasingly Asiatic cosmopolitan and especially Indian.

Country's Claims

The Burmese claims have been debated for years and will be debated again. All the details—the financial adjustments and so on—does not after all alter the case much. No question of Empire solidarity is at stake, no possibility of a total loss of the allegiance of these fifteen millions.

For some reason several leading books of reference say that half the population of Burma is Burman. The pure Burmans, however, actually number nine millions, and of the other six millions many are rough hill people knowing nothing of even the simplest of political issues.

afternoon. She will leave that port to-morrow for Shanghai and Hong Kong.

Kadar Buksh, aged 22, an eye specialist, was this morning fined $10 and ordered to be sent to Canton by Mr. Q. A. A. Macfadyen at the Central Police Court for entering the Colony without a passport.

The body of the man who was killed when knocked down near Shum Chun by the afternoon express train from the Kowloon Station on Wednesday last, has been identified as that of Wu Kin-chai, a 24-year-old farmer of Shan Ha village. The body has been removed to the Kowloon Mortuary.

Alleged to have made, or concurred in making a false entry in the cash book with the intent to defraud his employers of the sum of $5.10, Lam Sun, alias Lam Yuen, alias Lam Chu-fun, an accountant employed by the Lam Dore Company, was remanded until Thursday next by Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Police Court this morning. Bail of $500 was allowed.

RETURNED BANISHEES SENTENCED

Four months' hard labour was imposed on Lo Chuen by Mr. Q. A. A. Macfadyen at the Central Police Court this morning, for returning from banishment. Defendant was banished for 10 years as recently as last May. Another Chinese, Yan Chak, who was banished for five years last month, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment.

The most considerable non-Burmese races indigenous to Burma are the million odd Shans and the 1,400,000 Karens. The Shans are usually rather primitive. Many of the Karens, especially those that have forsaken the Karenni hills to live on the plains, are educated.

They comprise most of the large, indigenous Christian factor in the country. They are often known as "the Welsh of Burma" because they are a hill people. Their Christianity is mainly Nonconformist and they are natural adepts at choral singing with a mass musical sense.

Legendary Burman

In contradistinction, the Burman is generally known as:

- (a) A natural gentleman and sportsman.
- (b) A hedonist.
- (c) Lazy, bad tempered, and a quick killer.

The first may be heartily conceded, though there are exceptions, caused by the vagaries of the effect of Westernised education.

The Burman is a hedonist within limits. The asceticism of the wide Buddhist monastic life and the grim stoicism with which the Burmese withstand periods of terrible privation proclaim those limits.

The Burman is lazy as far as his climate and cultivation conditions not only permit, but make laziness almost inevitable. When you have only to scratch the ground and the crop "grows itself," why "rush about?" When he is in difficulties the Burman can work. This was shown when Burman cultivators, unemployed through the rice slump, came to Rangoon and literally (indeed in the bloodiest sense of hand-to-hand battle) fought the Indian stevedore labourer for a share of the work.

Uncertain Temper

The Burman's temper is one of the worst in the world. He may turn and kill anyone who "does him" for a farthing or smiles at his girl. On the other hand, unlike the people "across the Bay" (of Bengal), he never conspires for violence. It is spur-of-the-moment murder, or forgetfulness.

The Burmans during the rebellion only a year or so ago showed how "tough" they could be. Incidentally, when the news was given out in England that from time to time "Burmese villagers assisted the troops in capturing rebels," these villagers were usually Karens, not Burmans.

The average rural Burman, in time of rebellion (and that is just any time in Burma) sits on the fence.

How, someone will ask, can one give such a varied, unstable country a new constitution—or any constitution? Because there are stable factors, and hope for the future is to encourage, and enlarge these.

In the jungle of Burma there is jungle law. But steel and concrete Rangoon, with its palatial offices and public buildings, proclaims that the idyllic Burma, fierce and barbarous, has begun to yield and must go on yielding to the influence of the civilised world.

"Do you think fish is brain food?"
"Can't be my husband eats lots of it."

BRITAIN'S FOREIGN RELATIONS

IMPORTANT SPEECH BY SIR S. HOARE

EAGERLY AWAITED STATEMENT IN HOUSE OF COMMONS

London, To-day.

The House of Commons was crowded and the galleries were filled with distinguished men and women of many nationalities when the Foreign Secretary, Sir Samuel Hoare, delivered his eagerly awaited speech surveying the international situation yesterday.

He spoke first of disarmament and the recent Anglo-German naval agreement. The agreement was in no sense a selfish one. Any agreement made with Germany had obviously to be of such a character that it would not prejudice, but further the prospects of a general naval treaty.

There seemed overwhelming reasons why, in the interests of peace — the main objective of British foreign policy — the opportunity that offered should be seized. They had seen too many opportunities for disarmament slip away in the last 15 years, and each lost opportunity had led to the fear of unrest and greater armaments.

Here was a chance to eliminate what had been the chief cause of the embitterment of public feeling between Britain and Germany before the war — naval competition; to eliminate by the declaration of the German representatives the unrestricted use of submarines against merchant shipping; and to secure an agreement which on naval grounds seemed manifestly to the advantage of the other naval Powers, including France. His Majesty's Government had no apologies to make, for what was a practical, all-round contribution to peace.

In the concluding passages of the Open Door, coupled with a long speech, Sir Samuel Hoare spoke of the friendly relations existing between Great Britain and other countries, including France, Italy, Germany, Russia, the United States of America, Japan and China.

"We have stood close and collaborated through the years with France, and for deep reasons of common interest we shall continue to do so. It is not the British way to sacrifice old friendships for new, but that is not to say that we do not seek to add new friendships to the old."

"Our relations with the United States of America are excellent. On this side of the Atlantic there will never be a Government but will do its best to ensure this essential relation, essential to the world as to ourselves."

Speaking of the long unbroken friendship with Japan and the importance of the relations with China, he referred to the "disquiet caused to friends of Japan by certain recent events in North China, and expressed the hope that "the chapter of anxiety is closing. It is the view of His Majesty's Government that steady progress towards order and stability in China can only be maintained first by the promotion of good relations between China and Japan; and secondly, by co-operation between those two countries and other countries having similar interests and aims. "In a word, the maintenance of the principle of

Personal Pairs

Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Hugh-Jones returned from their honeymoon by the s.s. President Grant this morning. Mr. Hugh-Jones is a partner of Mr. J. S. Wilkinson & Grist.

Mr. N. E. Mullen, President of the Peoples Bank & Trust Co. in Hong Kong, returned to the Colony this morning by the s.s. President Hoover. He was accompanied by his wife and family.

The Editor and General Manager of the Manila Daily Bulletin, Mr. R. Bennett, passed through the Colony to-day by the s.s. President Hoover on his way to Shanghai.

The American Vice-Consul in Shanghai, Mr. E. F. Drumright, is returning to Shanghai from Manila by the s.s. President Hoover, which arrived in Hong Kong this morning.

FORTHCOMING WEDDING

The forthcoming marriage is announced of Mr. Claude Godfrey Fitzroy Lloyd, merchant, of No. 66, The Peak, Hong Kong, to Miss Edna Rahem, daughter of the late Captain Robert Dollar, who is en route to the Colony by the s.s. Potsdam.

JAPANESE NAVAL VISIT

Commander-in-Chief In Colony

OFFICIAL COURTESIES EXCHANGED

Official calls were exchanged this morning between Rear Admiral Shosuke Shimomura, Commander-in-Chief of the 5th Destroyer Flotilla of the Japanese Navy, who arrived in the Colony yesterday morning aboard the destroyer Tatsuta, and His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government, Sir Thomas Southorn, His Excellency Major General O. C. Barrett, and Commodore C. G. Sedgwick.

The Tatsuta saluted the country yesterday with 21 guns, the courtesy being returned from Blackhead Fort. H.M.S. Tamar saluted the Japanese Rear-Admiral yesterday at noon with 15 guns, the Tatsuta replying with the White Ensign flying at the fore.

At 2.50 p.m. yesterday the Tatsuta saluted the Japanese Consul with nine guns, with the Japanese Merchant flag at the fore.

It is understood the Rear-Admiral Shimomura will leave for Canton on his tour of inspection in the Saga on Monday.

A Guard of Honour, formed of officers and men from the Lincolnshire Regiment, together with the Regimental band and Colours, was drawn up before Government House as Sir Thomas Southorn left to pay his call.

FIRE CROSS LEAGUE IN FRANCE

Schism On Economic Policy

CHINA MAIL'S SPECIAL

Paris, To-day. A schism has developed in the Fire Cross League, the militant Right-wing organisation led by Lt.-Colonel de la Roque, seven leaders of the National Volunteers, which comprises upwards of 100,000 adherents and is closely associated with the Fire Cross, having resigned.

The resignations are motivated mainly by divergencies regarding economic questions, the dissentients refusing to accept Lt.-Col. de la Roque's conservative economic policy and criticising the Colonel's "dictatorial attitude" generally. The economic programme of the dissentients shows markedly Socialist tendencies, which Lt.-Colonel de la Roque emphatically rejects.

It remains to be seen how far the National Volunteers, who are mainly composed of young men who took no part in the war, will follow the example set by the leaders.—Trans-Ocean Service.

CHINESE CHOW

A "Vade Mecum" For Tourists

GOOD DOLLAR'S WORTH

A very well printed and designed booklet, costing only a dollar, which should be of the utmost value to all visitors to and tourists in the Colony, has just been published by the Tell-World Publishing Company. It is entitled "Chinese Chow," and is a complete guide to the sensible ordering of Chinese food in the local restaurants.

A host of useful data—including illustrated directions for the mastery of that elusive art, the using of chopsticks—covers all the conceivable pitfalls in the path of the inexperienced, and there is a valuable section which states the prices which should be charged for the various dishes.

Altogether, the compiler "Chopsticks" has done his work well. Though designed primarily for the visiting tourist, the booklet will be of inestimable value to the local diner-out who is unfamiliar with the technique of Chinese "chow." It can be heartily recommended.

AMERICAN BONDS TO BE OFFERED AT AUCTION

Washington, To-day. — Mr. Henry A. Morgenthau, Secretary of the Treasury, said that the Treasury is likely to offer on an auction basis the $100,000,000 2½ per cent. bonds maturing in 1945-46. — Reuters.

To-day's Short Story.

The Apostate

By George Milburn

HARRY, you been jacking me up about how I been neglecting Rotary here lately, so I'm just going to break down and tell you something. Now I don't want you to take this personal, Harry, because it's not meant personal at all. No sinner! Not a-tall! But, just between you and I, Harry, I'm not going to be coming out to Rotary lunches any more. I mean I'm quitting Rotary!

Now whoa there! Whoa! Whoa just a minute and let me get in a word edgewise. Just let me finish my life say.

Don't you never take it into your head that I haven't been wrestling with this thing plenty. I mean I've argued it all out with myself. Now I'm going to tell you the whereof and the howcome about this, Harry, but kindly don't let what I say go no further. Please keep it strictly on the Q.T. Because I guess the rest of the boys would suspicion that I was turning highbrow on them. But you've always been a buddy to me, Harry, you many old son of a hoss thief, you, so what I'm telling you is the straight dope.

Harry, like you no, doubt remember, up till a few months ago Rotary was about "the most fondest thing I is of," as the nigger says. There wasn't nothing that stood higher for me than Rotary. Well, here about a year ago last fall I took a trip down to the university to visit my son and go to a football game. You know Hubert Junior, my boy. Sure. Well, this is his second year down at the university. Yes sir, that boy is getting a college education. I mean, I'm all for youth having a college education.

TO-MORROW'S STORY

To-morrow's story will be "He Was Black, That One," by Michael Kent.

Of course I think there is such a thing as too much education working a detriment. Take, for instance, some of these longhairs running around knocking the country right now. But what I mean is, a good, sound, substantial college education. I don't mean a string of letters a yard long for a man to write after his John Henry.

I just mean that I want my boy to have his sheepskin, they call it, before he starts out in the world. Like the fellow says, I want him to get his A.B. degree, and then he can go out and get his J.O.B.

Now, Harry, I always felt like a father has got certain responsibilities to his son. That's just good Rotary. That's all that is. You know that that's just good Rotary yourself, Harry. Well, I always wanted Hubert to think about me just like I was a pal to him, or say an older brother, maybe. I don't know that him and I ever was that way in the fullest sense of the word, but God knows I've tried to make things like that between us. I mean I've always wanted to be just a big buddy to Hubert.

I'm not saying that I haven't made a pretty poor job out of it sometimes. But, anyhow, that's the spirit I've tried to get into our relationship ever since he was a little fink. Too many parents never actually get acquainted with their boy, see, Harry? I always encouraged Hubert to come to me and talk things over just like it was man to man.

I will admit that since Hubert got older I would sometimes find out things he had been keeping from me, especially after he got girl crazy. But, however, as I say, Harry, Hubert always knew that all he had to do was come to me, and I would act like a big buddy to him, irregardless.

Well, like I was telling you, Harry, I started Hubert into the university two years ago, and after he had been there about two months, I thought, "I would run him along and go to a football game. So I and Mrs. T. drove over one Friday. We didn't know the town very well, so we stopped at a filling station, and I give Hubert a ring, and he come right on down to where we was to show us the way. Just as soon as he come up, I could see right then that he had something on his mind bothering him."

He called me aside and took me into the filling station "rest-room," and says: "For the love of God, Dad, take that Rotary button out of your coat lapel," he says to me. Harry, that come as a plenty big surprise to me, and I don't mind telling you that it just about

LORRY DESTROYS SHOW-CASES

Crash In Queen's Road

At about 1.10 p.m. to-day, Lam Ip-sing, driver of motor-lorry No. 4149, of the Sun Sun Transport Company, while endeavouring to park the lorry in the lane between the Asia Life Building and Messrs. Wong Sing's premises, knocked down and demolished the glass show-cases of the King's Studio and the Standard Press, doing damage estimated at about $100. This would run a what you might call "sacred" thing—yes, sir, it's that's the kind of Red you got out at your "Tranquility" the King's Studio.

and your mamma can just go some-wheres else and put up. I don't guess the hotels have quit running." I says to him.

By now I was on my high horse right, see?

"Now, Dad," Hubert says, "it's not that. I mean, personally I'm awful proud of you. It's just that I haven't been pledged to this fraternity long, see, and when some of those older members found out you was a Rotarian they would deal me a lot of misery, and I couldn't say nothing. Personally I think Rotary is all right," he says to me.

"Well, you better, son," I says,
"or I'm going to begin to think that you're sick in the head."

The way he explained it, though, Harry, that made it a horse of a different tail, as the saying goes, so I give in and took off my Rotary button right there. Stuck it in my pocket, see? So we went on out and visited at Hubert's fraternity house, and do you know that those boys just got around there and treated we folks like we was princes of the blood. I mean you would of thought that I was an old ex-graduate of that university. And we saw the big pig-skin tussle the next day, fourteen to aught, favour us, and we had such a scrumptious time all around I forgot all about what Hubert had said.

Everything would of been all right, except for what happened later. I guess some of those older boys at the frat house begin using their form of psychology on Hubert. I mean they finely got his mind set against Rotary, because when he came home for the summer vacation that was about the size of things.

I mean all last summer I thought Hubert never would let up. He just kept it up; making sarcastic remarks about Rotary, see? Even when we was on our vacation trip. You know we drove out to California and back last summer, Harry. Come back with the same air in the tyres we started out with. Well, I thought it would be kind of nice to drop in and eat with the Hollywood Rotary—you know, just to be able to say I had.

So I contacted them and had everything all fixed up. Well, do you know that that boy Hubert made so much fun of the idea I just had to give it up? That was the way it was the whole trip. He got his mother around on his side, too. Just to be frank with you, I never got so sick and tired of anything in all my born days.

Well, Harry, I had my dander up there for a while, and all the bickering in the world couldn't shoo me from my stand. But finely Hubert went back to college in September, and I thought I would have a little peace. Then I just got to thinking about it, and it all come over me. "Look here, Mister Man," I says to myself, "your faith and loyalty to Rotary may be a fine thing and all that, but it's just costing you the fellowship of your own son." Now a man can't practise Rotary in the higher sense, and yet at the same time be letting his own son's fellowship get loose from him. So there it was. Blood's thicker than water, Harry. You'll have to admit that.

"Right along in there, Harry, was the first time I begin to attending meetings irregular. I'll tell you—you might not think so—but it was a pretty tough struggle for me. I remember one Monday noon, Rotary-meeting day, I happened to walk past the Hotel Beckman just at lunch-time. The windows of the Venetian Boom was open, and I could hear you boys singing a Rotary song: You know that one we sing set to the time of "Last Night on the Back Porch." It goes:

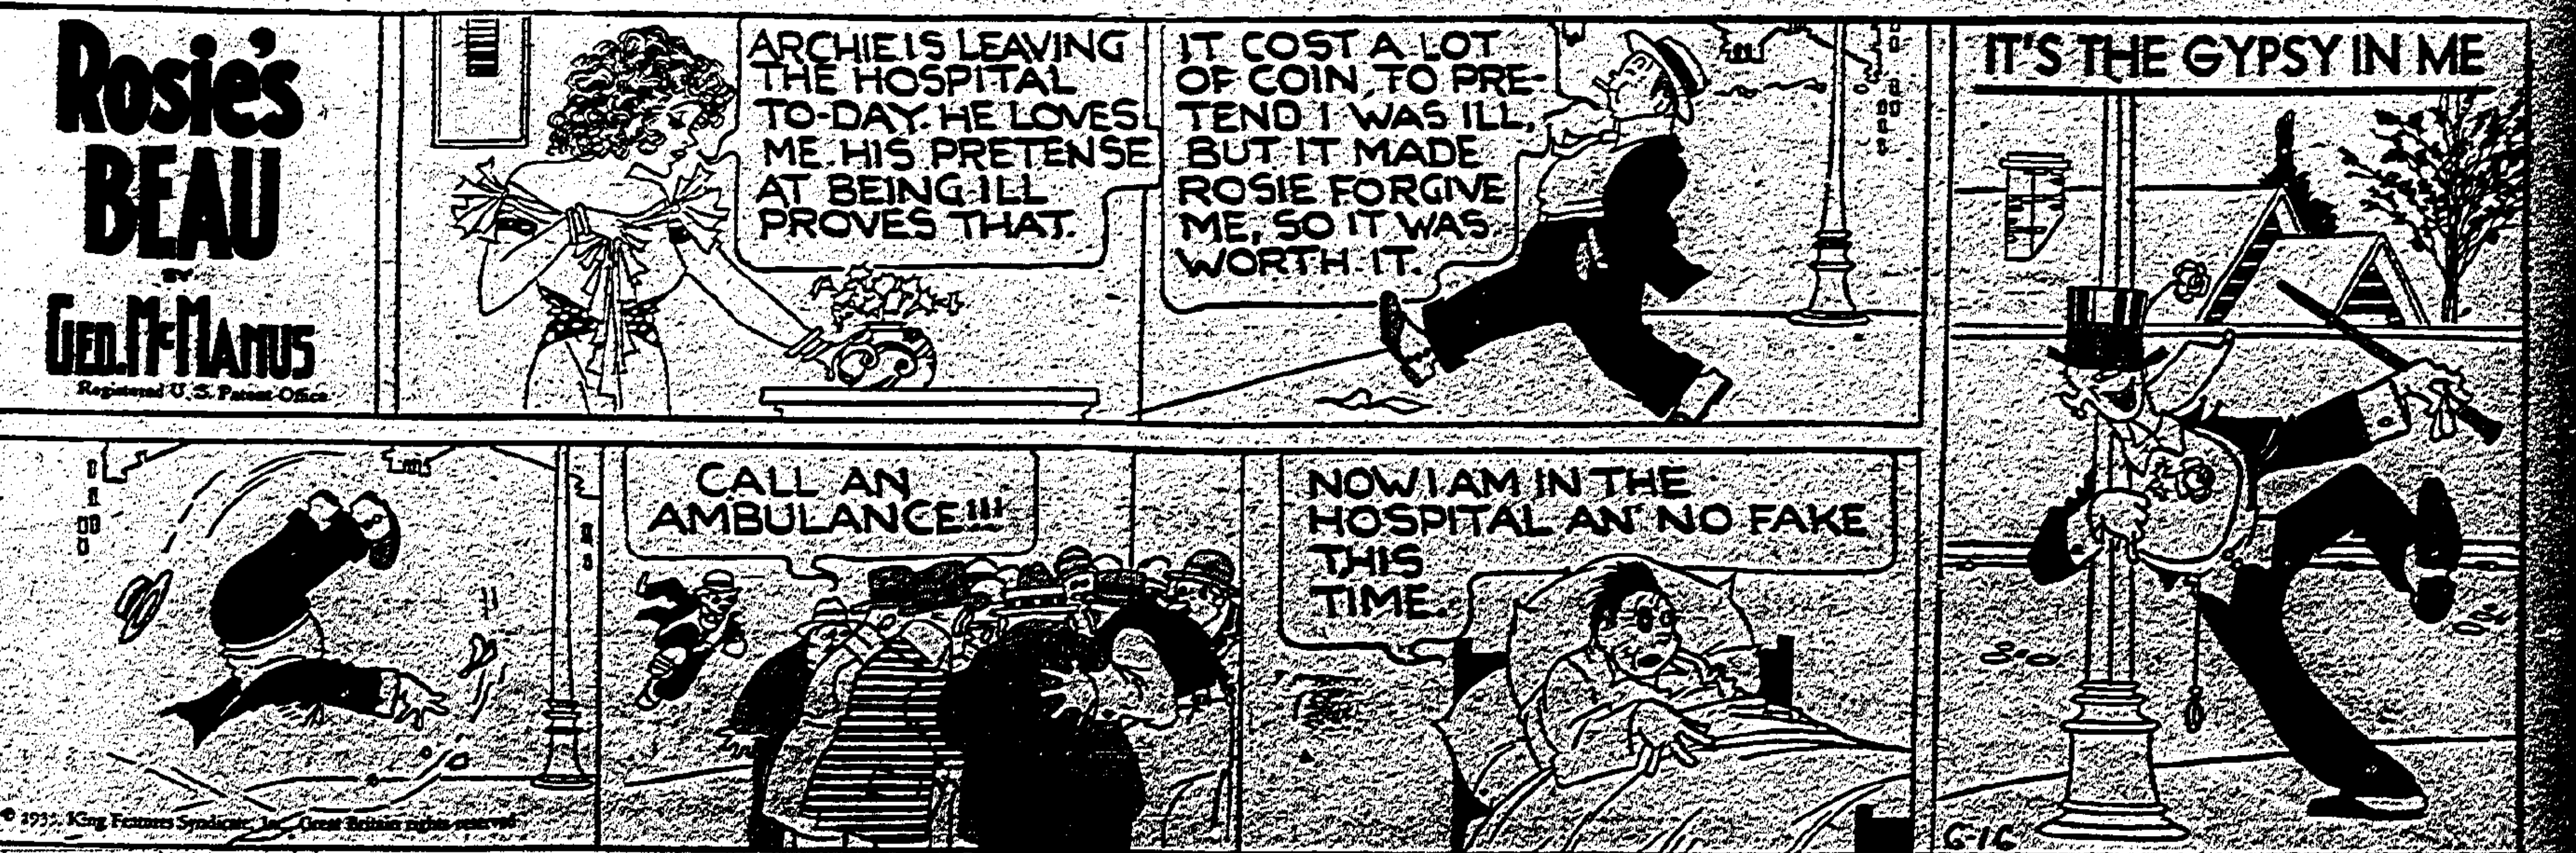

I love the Lions in the morning,
The Exchange Club at night,
I love the Y's men in the evening.

And Kiwanis are all right.---
Well, I couldn't carry a tune if I had it in a sack, but anyway that's the way it goes. So I just stopped in my tracks and stood there listening to that song coming out of the Hotel Beckman dining-room. And then the boys came to the last verse:

I love the Optimists in the springtime,
The Ad Club in the fall,
But each day—and in every way—

I love Rotary best of all.

THE KING AND HIS PEOPLE

Colonial's Minister's Speech

JUBILEE FUNCTION

His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government has received from the Secretary of State for the Colonies the following copy of the text of the address which he delivered to His Majesty the King, on behalf of the Colonial Empire, at the reception of the Diplomatic Corps and representatives of the Empire, held at St. James's Palace on May 8 in connection with His Majesty's Silver Jubilee celebrations.

"On behalf of all Your Majesty's subjects in the many lands of your Colonial Empire, I offer you, Sir, their loyal and heartfelt congratulations.

"Many of these countries are well known to Your Majesty personally, and the proud memory of your own visits, Sir, has been renewed by those of members of your family, whom they have rejoiced to honour. Throughout these distant lands, Your Jubilee has been celebrated, and Your Majesty's own message has been heard.

"Infinite in their variety of race and creed and rule, the peoples of these lands are one in personal devotion to Your Majesty and in loyalty to Your Throne. Everywhere they are mindful of the wise and gracious solicitude with which You have ever watched over their interests and promoted their welfare, a solicitude in which Her Majesty the Queen has conspicuously shared.

"It is their earnest prayer that Your Majesty may long be spared to continue Your high imperial task."

DECEPTION SAVES MOTHER'S LIFE

Death Concealed For Seven Months

FAMILY'S DIFFICULT TASK

Hollywood. Eight months of "white lies" have saved the life of 72-year-old Mrs. Julia Colombo, mother of the film "crooner," Russ Colombo, who was accidentally shot dead at Hollywood last September. She was critically ill with a heart ailment at the time. The shock of his death would have killed her, it was believed. So for eight months Carole Lombard and other friends have been keeping up the pretence that Russ is still alive and is making a big success in films in England. Letters, flowers and telegrams purporting to come from him have been delivered to Mrs. Colombo from time to time to make their story ring true. Now Mrs. Colombo has recovered so well that the family are faced not only with the task of breaking the news of her son's death to her, but with explaining why the deception has been carried on so long.

Wendy Barrie, Hong Kong's own film star, in a scene from "It's a Small World," a Fox Film with Spencer Tracy.

TALKIE TALKS

"You Belong To Me"

Giving an intelligent characterization as the child of vaudeville actress Helen Mack, the little ten-year-old youngster David Jack Holt literally steals the show from every adult member of the cast.

Lee Tracy and Helen Morgan befriend the boy when stepfather Arthur Pierson puts him to school, which he loathes, and indirectly causes the mother's death.

You may go to see this picture because you still like Lee Tracy but it will be the youngster you will remember, and you won't be ashamed of your tears over the sentimental situations that take place backstage of the vaudeville theatre.

Lee Tracy plays a putty-nosed vaudeville comedian, and his fast-talking handwaving line is lacking. The rest of the cast do well, but the child is sincere and unaffected and should go far in pictures. (Alhambra.)

Majestic

The popular comedian Eddie Cantor will dance and sing his way into the hearts of his legions of admirers in "Kid Millions," another of his famous "Revue-like" musicals which give full limelight to the star and introduce the usual array of lovely Goldwyn girls.

This is followed by a picture that I can't say is for the masses in appeal, but if you want to see and hear outstanding acting from the famous Negro singer Paul Robeson, you will not miss the unusual picture "Emperor Jones." Dudley Digges too is worthy of special mention.

The deservedly popular Myrna Loy and William Powell, with support above the ordinary, will be seen in one of those exciting murder dramas, "Evelyn Prentice," a human and gripping entertainment that should be seen twice.

Star, Kowloon

"Charlie Chan in Paris," with the great star Warner Oland enacting the role he has now made famous. Unusually exciting and easily one of the best of the long series. Mary Brian is the principal among the female support.

Followed by delightful Myrna Loy and Warner Baxter (not forgetting the horse) in "Broadway Bill." Poignant drama, with the director Frank Capra handing out the sob-stuff in extra doses. Splendidly acted and the race scene at the finish is unforgettable.

Followed then by Jack Holt and Jean Arthur in "The Whirlpool," a story which tells of an ex-convict who returns to find wife and daughter and is enabled to help them when the necessity arises.

Oriental

The promise of the popular, enterprising Manager, Mr. Victor Hing, is now fulfilled and at the "Oriental" the Revival Week commences on the 14th. First we have one of the most successful musicals ever turned out by the British studio, "Sunshine Susie," with Owen Nares, Jack Hulbert and Renate Muller.

Then the moving picture, "City Lights," Charlie Chaplin's masterpiece. Virginia Cherril as the blind girl does excellently and the old movie favourite Harry Myers, as the drunk, helps in the outstanding success of this picture.

On the third day the ever popular team of Laurel and Hardy appear in "Fra Diavolo," then the other two who rival them with the public Wheeler and Woolsey in "Peach O' Reno."

Harold Lloyd in one of his earlier efforts, but still one of his best, "Feet First," then "Whoopie," which I still consider the best talkie Eddie Cantor has given us. Last but not least, on the 20th there is "Sunny Side Up" the first talkie produced with the adored Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell. You will still come away humming "If I had a talking picture of you" and "I'm a dreamer," both outstanding numbers. DIANE MURDER FOR 16s.

Berlin. Joseph Breuer, aged 18, is alleged to have murdered his grandmother because he wanted her to give him 10 marks (about 16 shillings) and she refused. The 10 marks represented all the cash she possessed. The crime occurred at Gonsersath, near Berkael, and the youth was arrested in a nearby public house, where he is alleged to have spent the money.

CRAIGENGOWER SENIOR WELL OPPORTUNITY

McGowan, when last seen, was a little off form, but he may rise to the occasion to-morrow. Armstrong has regained his old style and is now playing as well as ever; the team will be strengthened by his inclusion.

The Craigengower "B" combination are a well balanced lot, and it will be a surprise should they lose to-morrow. Cavanagh, Field, Arculli, Rossetti and Souza are skilled exponents of the game, and even now, are showing glimpses of greater things.

An Outstanding Factor

Unity, one of the most valuable assets associated with team work, is employed in almost every move made by the premier Craigengower team, and this factor, together with the undoubted talent that all their members enjoy, should carry them through to success when they meet the K.C.C. to-morrow; that is, if the form shown by the Cox's Road side against the Bowling Green can be a guide to criticism.

At the same time, the K.C.C. bowlers are in a stronger position to-day than they have been since the season opened. Hyde-Lay, Phillips and Fraser have won the respect of all by their efforts to lift the team from out of the rut where vice luck has placed it, and sportsmen would enjoy nothing better than to see them extricate themselves at the expense of the champions.

Best Junior Match

The best match of the Junior series will probably be that between the Broomie and the unbeaten Bowling Green.

The record of this latter Club suggests that victory will be theirs, but the improvement in the Portuguese side has been phenomenal. The Bowling Green are a most difficult team to subdue on their own green, and I think they will just manage to defeat their visitors.

Another contest that should supply spectators with many a thrill is that between the Foot-habers and Talcon. I think the shipbuilders will avenge an earlier defeat.

It is the opinion of many that Dr. Fernando, of Craigengower, is a most accomplished bowler and at the present moment is just about the best player in the team. Abbas is also showing up well. They should assist Craigengower to beat the K.C.C.

The Civil Service team will probably have a most enjoyable game with the Yacht Club, and, should the Yachtsmen steer their bows half as well as they do their yachts, they may not leave Happy Valley pointless.

BEATEN BY F.V. RAMSEY

Ramsey Escals

On the last head Ramsey surpassed himself, playing three brilliant bowls to within six inches of the jack and putting his fourth one behind in case Omar succeeded in driving. Although the back-hand remained open, Omar decided to drive with his second wood, rather than attempt to draw for the shot. He missed widely and there remained nothing for him to do but drive again with his other bowl. They, too, missed their objective by some feet, and another champion joined the fast swelling ranks of fallen bowls giants.

BRADBURY AS NEW SINGLES THREAT

It is not considered by those who witnessed this game that either Silva or Dallas would offer any great challenge to Cullen or Omar on the form displayed in this clash.

The play of B. W. Bradbury in his tie with G. E. F. Thompson was a revelation. He has improved to a great extent since last seen when opposed to J. Fraser in the open pairs. It seems quite clear that Bradbury is quite capable of winning the Open Singles, and his failure in past years has probably been due to the fact that he was too long idle during the close season. It is quite evident it takes him some time to regain form after an enforced absence.

Winter Play

On the Kowloon side, play is continued through the Winter, and that side of the Harbour has had the honour of holding the Open Singles Championship seven times in ten years (1925, F. Cullen, 1926 A. Gourley, 1927 B. Lapsley, 1929 B. F. Luz, 1930 A. M. Holland, 1932 L. Gutierrez, and 1934 Hyde-Lay). This, I would imagine, is a good argument, and upholds the belief that winter play is most beneficial, but should not be overdone.

Harold Beer and R. F. Luz were eliminated from the Open Pairs last Tuesday night by F. X. Silva and G. G. Silva under circumstances which were very trying to the four contestants.

The green was too heavy and sodden, therefore it did not exactly suit the losers' style of play. The Silvas, who play a more forceful game did not win as easily as the score suggests.

Consistency Personified

Luz, who was the best player on view, was consistency personified, and one had the feeling that had Luz been skip the result might have been reversed. Beer played brilliantly up to the 16th head then fell away badly. F. X. Silva was masterful and steady, but to G. G. Silva must go the honours of the victory.

I tell you, Harry, that just got me. I had a lump in my throat big enough to choke a cow. The tears begin coming up in my eyes, and it might sound ridiculous to hear me tell it now, but I could of broke down and bawled right there on the street. I got a grip on myself and walked on off, but right then I say to myself: "The hell with Hubert and his highbrow college-fraternity ideas; I'm going back to Rotary next week."

Well, I did go back the next week, and what happened decided me on taking the step I decide on. Here's what decided me. You know, I never got very well acquainted with Gay Harrison, the new secretary. I mean, of course, I know him all right, but he hasn't been in Rotary only about a year.

Well, on that particular day, I just happened to let my tongue slip and called him Mister Harrison, instead of by his nickname. Well, of course, the boys slipped a dollar fine on me right then and there. I haven't got no kick to make about that, but the point is, I had a letter from Hubert in my pocket right then, telling me that he had run short of money. So I just couldn't help but be struck by the idea: "I wish I was giving Hubert this dollar." So that's what decided me on devoting my time and finances to another kind of fellowship, Harry.

I get down to the university to see Hubert more frequently now. I make it a point to. And the boys come to me, and I am helping them a little on their frat building fund. There's a fine spirit of fellowship in an organization like that. Some boys from the best families of the State are members, too. You might think from what I said that they'd be uppish, but they're not. No, siree. Not a bit of it.

I been down here enough for them to know me, now, and they all pound me on the back and call me H.T., just like I was one of them. And I do them, too. And I notice that when they sit down to a meal they have some songs they sing just as lively and jolly as any we had at Rotary. Of course, like Hubert said, a few of them might have some wild-haired ideas about Rotary, but they're young yet. And as far as I can see there's not a knocker nor a southerly among them. Absolutely democratic.

It put me in mind of a little incident that happened last month when the frat threw a big Dad's Day banquet for us down there. All the fathers of the boys from all over the State was there. Well, to promote the spirit of fellowship between dad and son, the fraternity boys all agreed to call their dads by their first name, just treating the dads like big buddies. So at the table Hubert happened to forget for a minute, and says to me, "Dad" something.

Well, sir, the president of the frat flashed right up: "All right, Hable, we heard you call H.T. 'Dad'! So that'll just cost you a dollar for the ice-cream fund." Everybody had a good laugh at Hubert getting caught like that, but do you know that boy of mine just forked right over without making a kick. That shows the stuff don't it, Harry? Nothing wrong with a boy like that.

And the whole bunch is like that, even one of them. I'll tell you, Harry, the boys at that frat of Hubert's are the builders in the coming generation. Any man of vision can see that.

Well, that's that. Now what was you going to say?

BRITISH MINISTER'S STATEMENT

"We admit the justice of some criticisms made against the Abyssinian Government. But it is the fact that Italy needs expansion and that complaints have been made against Abyssinia sufficient cause for plunging into war?" He said that the Government was working to avert the calamity through the machinery of the treaty of 1906 and the League.

BLOCKADE DENIED
He denied as without foundation the rumours that "we ask the French Government to join in a blockade of Italy, and that we are preparing an isolated form of coercion against Italy."

Sir Samuel Hoare concluded with warm references to the friendship with France, Italy and Russia, with whom we were on better terms than since the Soviet Government had been established, and the United States, China, and Japan.—Reuter.

ITALIAN REACTION
Rome, To-day.
Sir Samuel Hoare's statement is welcomed in well-informed quarters as marking an improvement in the British attitude. Similarly the news that Britain is declining to supply arms to Abyssinia is welcomed, which, it is asserted, will have a salutary influence on the Abyssinian Government.—Reuter.

The Scheveningen Breakdown NEXT STEP RESTS WITH LITVINOFF

Geneva, To-day.
In reporting to the League the breakdown of the Scheveningen negotiations, the Italian arbitrators express their willingness to continue with the discussions within the limits of the terms of the arbitration agreement, but suggest an adjournment until tomorrow week to permit the two Governments to reach a provisional agreement.

The Abyssinian delegate, Professor Jene, simultaneously calls attention to the extreme urgency of Council intervention, but he does not ask for immediate convocation.

Consequently the President of the Council (M. Litvinoff, Russia) will be called upon to decide whether the arbitration procedure has really failed, or whether to await August 25 for the meeting of the Council, as originally fixed.—Reuter.

"Blatant, Big Bully" VIGOROUS CRITICISM FROM LABOUR

London, To-day.
Winding up the foreign affairs, an hour, Mr. M. D. Kirkpatrick, debate on behalf of the Labour members Mr. Morgan Jones (Lab., Caerphilly) said that the Government had been too late with China and with Germany, and was now almost too late with Abyssinia. The Government was vigorous and assertive in respect of the smaller nations, but when a blatant, big bully appeared, they ran away.

Mr. Anthony Eden, Minister for League of Nations Affairs, replying, said: "If anybody thinks it is a feature of British policy henceforth, that British territory will be given away when accommodation is sought, I emphatically deny the assertion." A Labour motion to reduce the estimates was rejected by 236 votes to 40.—Reuter.

100 kilometres: Average speed of 153.13 m.p.h.
50 miles: Average speed of 153.008 m.p.h.
100 miles: Average speed of 152.95 m.p.h.
200 kilometres: Average speed of 153.24 m.p.h.—Reuter.

PEASANT LEADER SENTENCED

Drastic Action By French Court

"CHINA MAIL" SPECIAL

Paris, To-day.
The peasantry of the north of France are greatly perturbed at the severity of the sentence pronounced by the Rouen Court on the peasant leader M. Dorgeres, who has been sent to prison for eight months and fined 1,000 francs as well, while several of his collaborators were also fined and imprisoned for shorter terms.

Their offence was that in mass meetings they had urged their followers to refuse to pay taxes, as a protest against the agricultural policy of the Government.—Trans-Ocean Service.

CONGRESS OF KUOMINTANG IN CANTON

VETERAN LEADER'S RETURN

SOUTH-WEST GROUP'S INFLUENCE

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Canton, To-day.
A representative of General Chen Chi-tang will be sent to Bangkok to request the return of Mr. Hsiao Fu-chen, veteran Kuomintang leader and leading member of the South-west Political Council. His presence is urgently needed here owing to the approaching date of the Kuomintang Fifth National Congress.

The South-west group is manoeuvring for points of vantage in the coming Congress. The advice of Mr. Hsiao Fu-chen is required in this connection owing to his long connection with the Kuomintang and his courage in speaking his mind. Mr. Hsiao went back to Siam three months ago to attend to private business and promised to return here at any time in case of need.

Mr. Wang Ching-wei, President of the Executive Yuan, is said to be planning to return to Hong Kong to recuperate. Dr. Kurt Knoll advised Mr. Wang to leave Shanghai for the sake of his health. If Mr. Wang leaves his post, Mr. Hu Han-min may be requested to fill his place.

The Fifth Congress, postponed twice owing to opposition from Canton, is a very important gathering and has considerable powers to influence policy.

GERMAN INTERESTS IN MEMEL

Appeal Court Decision
Questioned

"CHINA MAIL" SPECIAL

Berlin, To-day.
Another episode in the long-standing Memel dispute has arisen out of the decision of the Kovna Appellate Court on May 14, in consequence of which a considerable amount of landed property belonging to a Reich German was distrainted upon to meet the claims of creditors, the Agraria Credit Society and the Credit Society of Memel Landowners.

As this seriously prejudices German interests, the Reich Government has sent a note to the Lithuanian Government protesting against the decision of the Appellate Court.—Trans-Ocean Service.

The child had an open safety pin in its stomach.

The pilot declared that the trip had been uneventful and that the baby enjoyed the air ride. "The baby looked plenty healthy to me and I don't think he was in much danger," he said.

Doctors concurred in his opinion and said that they expected the operation to be successful.
